U.S. E-Cigarette Regulation: A 50-State Review

The following chart is a snapshot of the U.S. landscape of e-cigarette regulation as of June 15, 2017. The information below was based on a 50-state (plus Washington, D.C.) survey of current state statutes pertaining to e-cigarette regulations in the following areas: definition of “tobacco product,” taxation, product packaging, youth access/other retail restrictions, retail license/permit requirement, and smoke-free air legislation.¹ Whenever possible, hyperlinks to free online resources containing the cited authority are included. Please note, however, that some links go to legislative websites or portals because the laws have not yet been codified or are not otherwise available. In some instances, public domain websites have not yet been updated to include the most recently passed laws. The N/A designation refers to the lack of state laws or regulations related to e-cigarettes as of June 15, 2017; however, many local laws in these states (and throughout the U.S.) address e-cigarettes.

¹ N.B. Statutes/regulations available via Westlaw legal database as of the snapshot date are included in the table, as are any regulations not found in the database but about which we have been made aware. Regulations governing the following are NOT included in the chart, as they simply support the sales/other restrictions within the statutory scheme: requirements that retailers/vending machines display signs indicating minimum access age; internet sales restrictions that mirror captured sales restrictions; requirements that retailers verify the age of anyone who appears under a certain age; permission for retailers to refuse a sale if purchaser cannot prove age; penalties assessed for violations; permission for minors participating in enforcement activities to possess product.
